Social Justice

Christian and Islamic Perspective

Social justice refers to the concept of a society in which justice is achieved in every aspect of society, rather than merely the administration of law. The term can be amorphous and refer to sometimes self-contradictory values of justice. It is generally thought of as a world which affords individuals and groups fair treatment and an impartial share of the benefits of society. It can also refer to the distribution of advantages and disadvantages within a society. (Wikipedia)

Dr. Saleem Rahman

Economist

Ottawa, ON

Dr. Saleem Rahman has a Ph.D. degree in Economics and is an economist by profession. After teaching Economics at a Canadian university, he now serves in economic policy environment. Comparative study of religions is one of his passions: exploring the common core of all major world religions, and studying the "human side" of various faiths, usually buried under multiple layers of dogma and rituals. He perceives religion as a positive force that has global potential for fostering international peace by bringing people and communities together. Dr. Rahman has addressed many public forums on a variety of social and religious issues.

The Ahmadiyya Muslim Community is an international religious organization having millions of members, with branches spread over 180 countries in Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America. The Community firmly believes and always promotes its blessed slogan; 'Love for All Hatred for None'
